What's new?

Year 2025 has barely started. After the New Year wishes to families, friends and kins, it looks like the routine has already invaded people's behaviours. The old habits have comfortably settled in the driver's seat. The passenger, who is none other than the individual, seated cozily in the back seat of the cab, is being driven. From the comfort zone, people look happy. They are mesmerized by the scenery, captured through the quarter glass! Among the best friends from the routine camp, is ego with a capital 'E', present, sparking aggression here and there over confused or abused citizens. God will be invoked as and when required. Religion will be used every often to unite or divide, but always to suit conveniences. Kindness and humility will take stage when people's interests are at stake! Well things are as they are, and the swing is in the direction of the wind. And though politics is at its own place, doing its same routine habitual stuffs, everything seems to revolve around that political concept, though virtual, but as if election is tomorrow. This is well maintained by social media which ensures that TRP goes up! General elections have been over in 2024 but its still high tide in the country. Government is doing what the leading political parties in the Westminster model are fond of doing after winning elections. However, among all those emotions, I come to invite everybody to realise about the fastness with which time is running. Life is short. Lifetime is limited. So ensure to live a life full of good things where humility, love, compassion and gratefulness are the pillars of the humanity. The opportunity is there. Just grab it!
